The Villa officials, taking advantage of the WIRELESS EXPERT'S lifting of the embargo to rush many needed supplies across the line, state that they regard this action of Washington as tantamount to a recognition of Villa. By the use of these, he says, the electrically impelled sound waves are heard with more effectiveness. In his experiments, he says, he has had no trouble whatever in hearing Honolulu. Hollinger's statement of the need an office in the treasury building for the park superintendent is that the present office fitted up for him in the city hall is far too small, and that the building inspector and the park superintendent should have their offices close together. "It is natural," says Hollinger, "that these two men should work along the same lines, but what is the use of having a garbage superintendent along with the building inspector?"

Meanwhile, employes at the treasury building predict that it may be considerably colder weather in Hawaii than it is now, when Superintendent Aylett falls in with the request from the supervisor and agrees to move to some other place. The garbage office has been in its present location for about three and one-half years, they say. Hollinger threatens to bring the matter before the board in the form of a resolution.
